Recognize the symptoms and save a life!

EARLY ACTION, EARLY TREATMENT, SAVES LIVES.

Motor delays or missed milestones may signal serious conditions like SMA (spinal muscular atrophy). There is new hope, but it's important to act swiftly and make SMarT Moves.

SMarTMoves.CureSMA.org

Welcome to sunny Ft. Lauderdale!

The early childhood field is a vast and ever-expanding sea of possibilities, and I am delighted that you are here to dive in with us at the ZERO TO THREE Annual Conference 2019.

Over the next several days, you will be immersed in the latest research and best practices with thousands of your colleagues, representing a mosaic of disciplines in nearly every state and several countries around the globe. We are especially eager to share with you five plenary sessions with a lineup of outstanding speakers who will take you to new depths on topics ranging from the latest research on early life adversity to best practices for advancing quality and equity in early childhood programs.

We are also delighted to share new features for you this year, including Baby Talks, short TED-style conversations advancing innovative and inspiring ideas to address challenges in early childhood development. And we are pleased to offer over 70 breakout sessions, a wide range of networking opportunities with renowned experts, along with the opportunity to earn 20 continuing education credits.

Be sure to visit the Annual Conference app. It will be your guide to the many opportunities you will have to connect with your all-star colleagues from the opening reception to the keynote plenary featuring Doreen Oliver. Through her work as a performer and essayist, Doreen has captured the victories and challenges of parenting a child with autism with bravery and compassion. I can't wait for you to hear her story.

On behalf of all of us at ZERO TO THREE, we are grateful for the opportunity to support your professional journey. Now, let's take the plunge.

Warmly,

Matthew Melmed, JD
Executive Director

Welcome to the Annual Conference 2019!

On behalf of the ZERO TO THREE Board of Directors, it is my pleasure to welcome you to Annual Conference 2019! This is my first year serving as President of the ZERO TO THREE Board of Directors, and I could not be more excited and honored to be learning, sharing, connecting, and reconnecting with you.

As you dive into the exciting and informative conference activities over the next few days, I encourage you to visit the ZERO TO THREE Membership booth to learn more about member benefits. Our members make our mission possible, and I am confident that the supportive and growing network can inform and reinforce your work. Nearly 4,000 of your peers have already joined this powerful organization for young children and their families.

Don't miss the unique opportunity to meet the ZERO TO THREE Professional Development and Workforce Innovation team. You can visit them in the Marketplace at the ZERO TO THREE booth. They'll give you an insider view of our professional development offerings. From on-demand e-learning to trainer certification, our competency-based PD is designed to support your career goals now and in the future.

I hope you enjoy our time together in Ft. Lauderdale. And please, if you see me or other members of the ZERO TO THREE Board and staff, please introduce yourself and share your ideas. After all, these are the meaningful connections at the center of our work each and every day. Thank you for all you do to support babies, toddlers, and their families!

Sincerely,

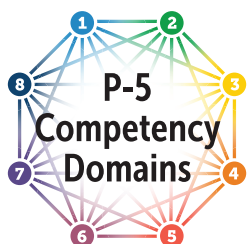

Paul Spicer, PhD
Board President

Calling Child Care Advocates: Policymakers Need You to Help Them Think Babies

Amanda Perez, MSW, Jennifer Shaffer, MSW, LCSW, ZERO TO THREE; and Michele Rivest, North Carolina Early Education Coalition

Become a baby advocate! Join us for an interactive session on grassroots advocacy. ZERO TO THREE experts will highlight the value of your input in the advocate role, discuss child care issues at both the state and national levels, and help plan advocacy strategies for the upcoming year.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4 | 10:00 am–11:30 am

The Power of Simple Interactions: A Video-Based Workshop to Appreciate and Strengthen Everyday Human Interactions With Young Children

Practice Plenary Speaker: Junlei Li, PhD, Senior Lecturer at the Harvard Graduate School of Education

In this interactive, video-based, and practice-focused workshop, dive deeper into the "simple interactions" approach to closely examine adult-child interactions in early learning contexts! Practice appreciative "noticing" and reflective "wondering," and discuss how these interactions weave together four basic building blocks of the human relationship. Building on these principles, reflect on the "parallel processes" of adult-adult interactions that support professionals and families.

Measure of Engagement Independence, and Social Relationships (MEISR™), Research Edition

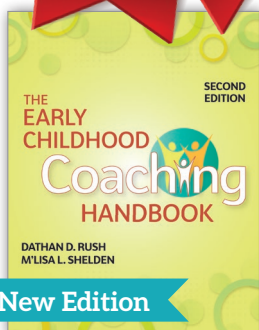

By R. A. McWilliam, Ph.D., & Naomi O. Younggren, Ph.D.

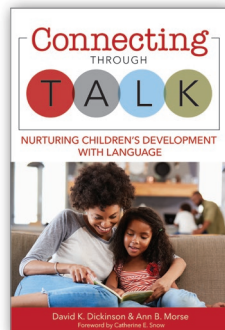

Young children grow and learn when they participate fully in everyday routines and activities. Assess this critical dimension of child development with the MEISR™, an easy-to-use tool for creating a snapshot of the functional behaviors of children from birth to 3 years of age. Completed by caregivers and easy to use with them during home visits, the MEISR helps you:

- Start important conversations with families about their child's participation in everyday activities
- Support child engagement—an important prerequisite to learning
- Empower families to enhance natural learning opportunities
- Help families choose functional skills to address within the IFSP
- Help your team determine Child Outcome Summary (COS) ratings
- Develop individualized intervention priorities

An Infant-Toddler Assessment With Feeling; Up-to-Date Use of a Truly Comprehensive, Intervention-Based Assessment

With growing attention on increasing numbers of young children identified with mental health and behavioral concerns, it is essential to understand and assess the emergence of psychosocial development in very young children. In this session we look at indicators of the quality of a child's relationship to others, the range and quality of feelings or affects that are part of the developing child's emotional repertoire and coping behavior. To understand and utilize these indicators for intervention planning, it is necessary to observe and assess a child's ability to adapt and apply his/her capabilities and skills to meet the demands of daily living. We introduce the Infant-Toddler Developmental Assessment (IDA-2), which integrates social, emotional, and coping milestones into comprehensive global developmental assessment, with attention to parent report and health variables. (The original assessment was developed by Sally Provence, MD, and her colleagues at Yale.)
